

MS Reshma

Throughout my 25+ years in the industry, collaboration and communication have been fundamental pillars in achieving business goals. Starting my professional journey in 1999 after graduating from California State with a master's in computer engineering, I have honed my skills as a managing director within Accenture's cloud group. Since joining Accenture in 2006 in San Francisco and later moving to Bangalore a decade ago, I've traversed the globe, leveraging my expertise in Business Process Management and Automation to drive value for clients.

As a value-driven technologist, I am deeply passionate about leveraging my extensive domain knowledge and technological prowess to tackle real-world business challenges. My career has been marked by a continuous evolution, embracing change as the only constant. Along the way, I've learned that effective collaboration and communication are indispensable elements in navigating the complexities of today's business landscape and driving successful outcomes for our clients.
